

AES Staff Completes Course

by Dennis Gamble

After five weeks of half-day classes, the 20 students of the Introductory Descriptive Meteorology Course (IDM) 78-2 tied up loose ends and gravitated to their positions in AES, each person more aware of the basic processes in meteorology.

Graduation ceremonies took place October 20, 1978 with Morley Thomas, director-general, Central Services Directorate, as guest speaker.

The purpose of the IDM course is to introduce a variety of concepts in meteorology to non-meteorological AES personnel at headquarters. It is hoped the course will enhance their performance on the job and give them an appreciation of their place within the organization.

The next course is scheduled for April, 1979. If you are interested in learning more about meteorology let your supervisor know and reserve your seat now.

THE IDM GRADUATING CLASS

Standing/debouts: (left to right), Hugh Black, Aldo Missio (instructor), Colin Ramplee-Smith, Dennis Gamble (course director), Alex Blokhine, Dan Broomer, Gord Poole, Trevor White (instructor), Dave Ker.

Seated/assises: Eileen Veinot, Myra D'Gabriel, Marie Littlejohn, Gail Swyszcz, Jane Clark, Linda O'Leary, Nora Burnett, Marion Kaye.

Absent/manquants: Deb Bittle, Brian Clark, Steve Kowalczyk, Tsuyoshi Maruoka, Fred Trow, Mohammed Wasey.